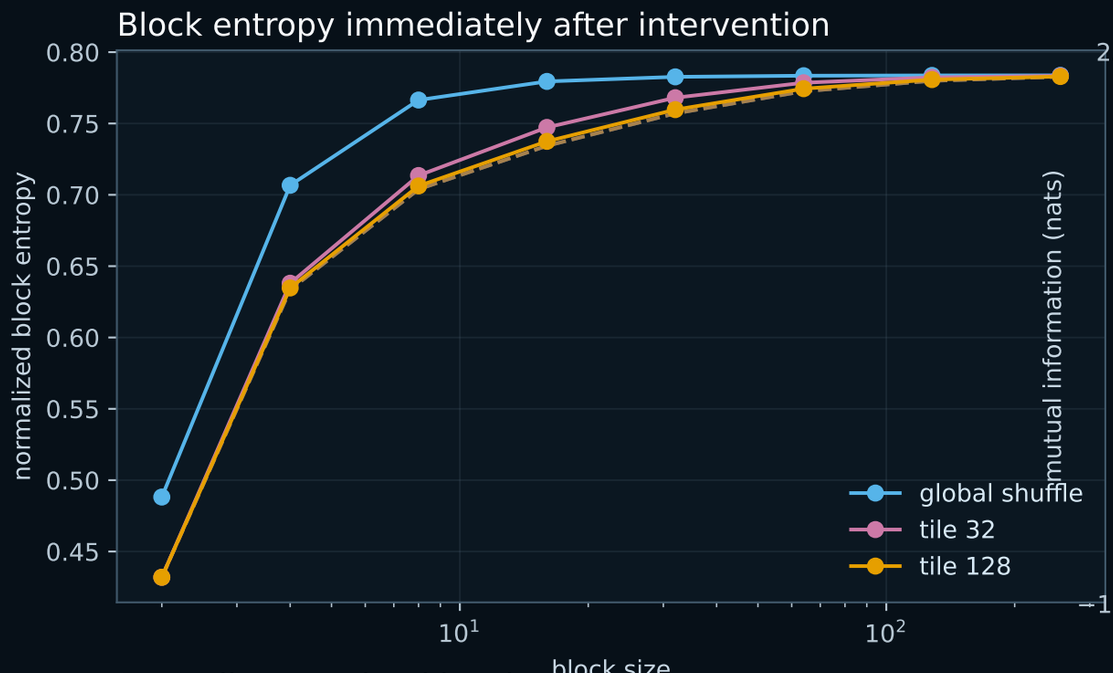
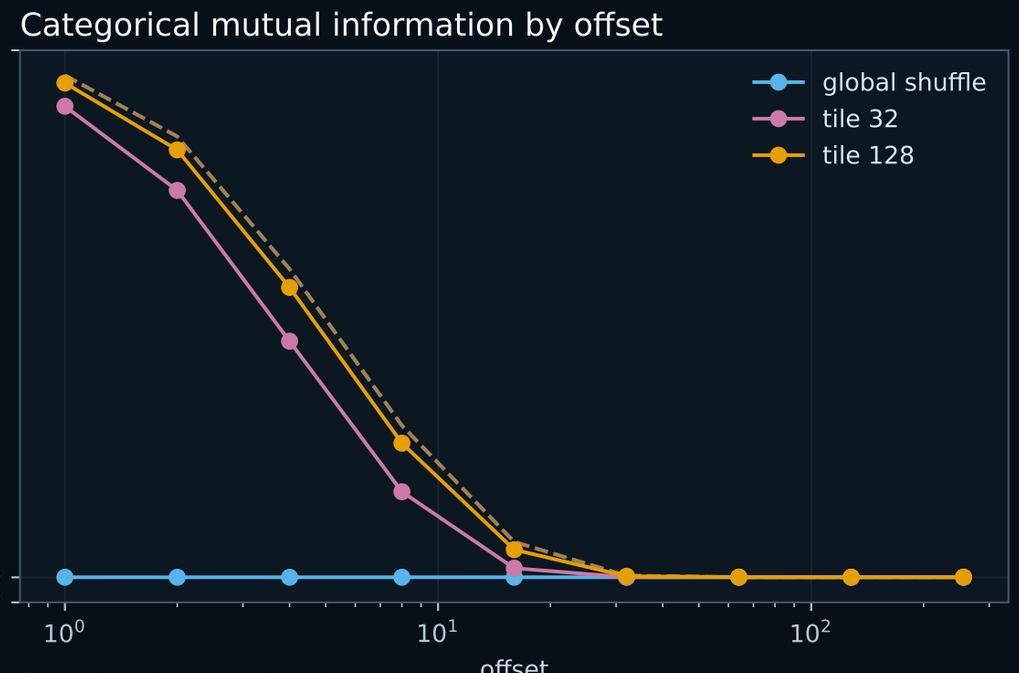
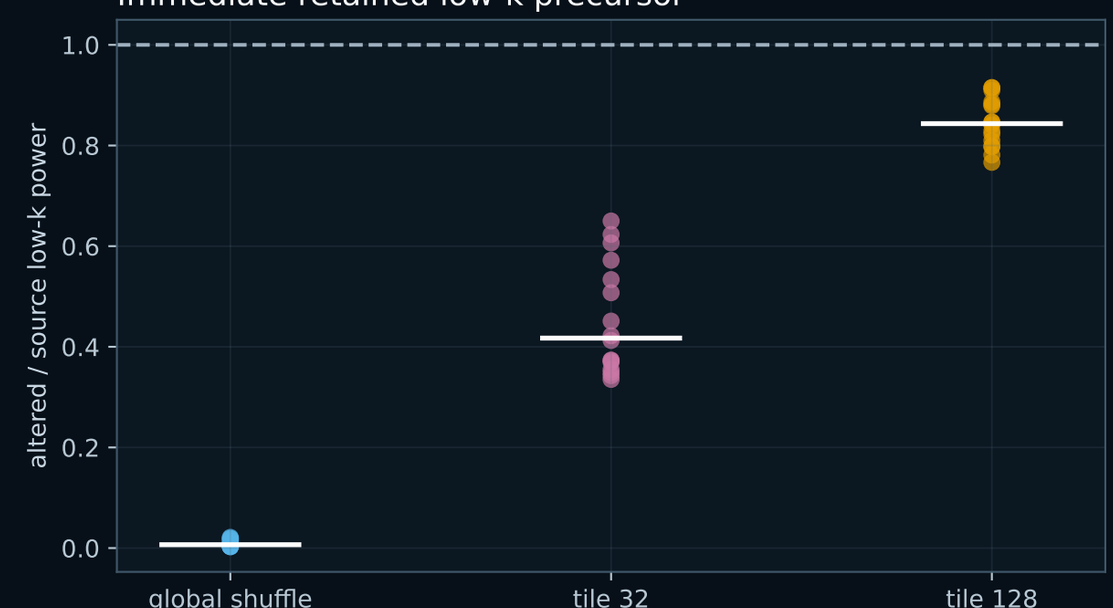
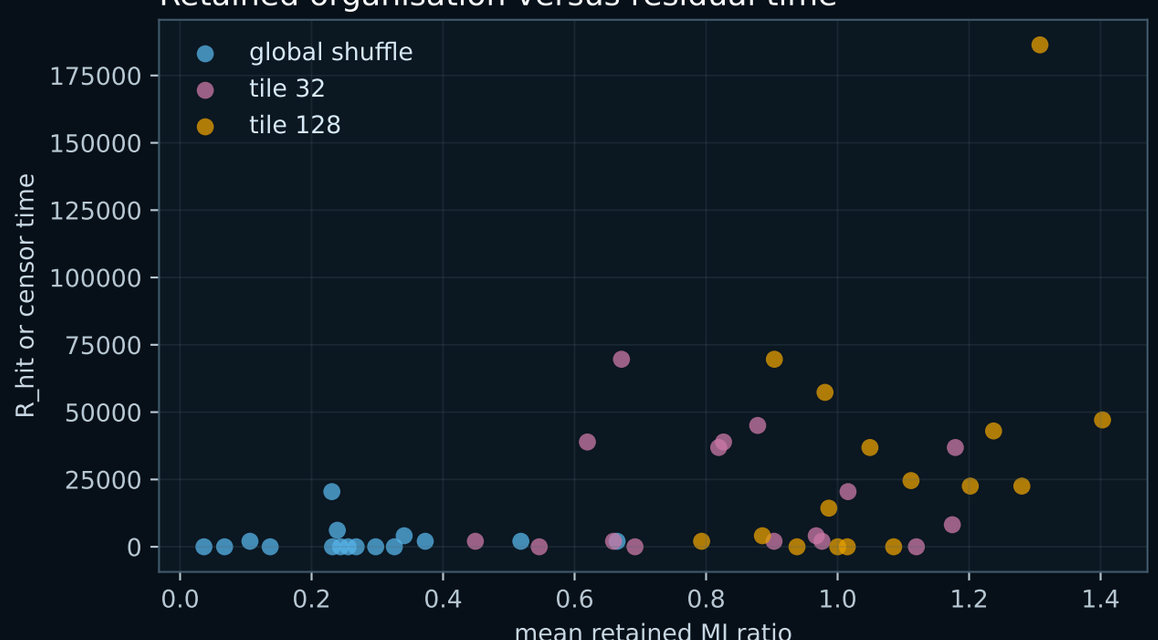
How much spatial information survives each intervention?









Solid curves are altered-state measurements; dashed curves are their matched pre-intervention sources. Lines connect measured scale points and are not fitted laws.